ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Sincerest thanks to the many colleagues who have contributed to the thinking about the Getting to Equity Framework (GTE) and its use and encouraged its further development. We are particularly grateful to those listed below who have collaborated on the conceptualization, development, technical and financial support needed to launch the inaugural GTE website.

Tiffany Eaton, DrPH Candidate, Drexel University Dornsife School of Public Health (Philadelphia) and GTE Toolkit Project Manager

Staff at the Council on Black Health, Inc. Knightdale, NC

Conceptual Geniuses, LLC, Silver Spring, MD

Colleagues who have applied the GTE Framework and allowed us to adapt their work for the case studies.

Colleagues who have let us know that they are using the GTE framework in college or university courses.

Members of the first phase of the Roundtable on Obesity Solutions, National Academy of Medicine, Washington, DC
Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Leadership of the Healthy Eating Research Program National Program Office, Duke University, Durham, NC

Washington University of St. Louis Center for Diabetes Translation Research, St. Louis, MO National Institutes of Health, National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Disorders, P30DK092950.